Making Connections and Finding Support through Literature is an initiative that was created to empower our military children by using literature and their own stories. Tell Me A Story is geared toward children ages 4-12.

Each family will receive a copy of the book. Hands-on activities, snacks, and a fun learning experience will be provided. Reserve your space today!

Parent Tips

During February talk to your child about leadership and about how each one of us can be a leader at home and at school. Here are some tips that will help you develop leadership skills in your child:

-Involve your child in family plans and decisions.

-Offer your child the responsibility of caring for a pet or carrying out a household chore.

-Provide opportunities for your child to lead a discussion, a game or family activity.

-Talk to your child about the accomplishments (large and small) of leaders in the community, in the news, at home and at school.

-Set an example of leadership at home, at school and in your community by participating in special projects and activities.

-Praise your child when he or she demonstrates leadership skills, such as doing chores without being told, helping a younger sibling who is having difficulty performing a task, or initiating a family activity.

Avoid Morning Mayhem

Do mornings bring out the monster in your munchkin?

Try these ideas for making the before-school period as tantrum free as possible.

-Get yourself up earlier. Allow 15-20 minutes to get yourself ready before waking your child.

-Make a "morning routine" chart. List what they're expected to do. As they get used to their tasks, they grumble less.

-Prep the night before. The fewer things you have to do in the morning before—like packing lunches—the better.

Breakfast

Many students have been arriving too late to eat breakfast. If you want your child to eat breakfast they need to be here no later than 9:05 a.m. THANKS!
